Pliops is a startup with an audacious vision: to tackle the data explosion on behalf of individual companies and the world at large. We were founded in 2017 by data architecture experts who devised an ingenious solution to the problems that arise when massive data growth collides with the shortcomings of existing compute and storage systems.

Leading investors believe in our vision, to the tune of $115 million to date—and counting. CRN named us as one of the 10 hottest semiconductor startups in 2020. And Pliops teams in Israel and the United States are working in partnership with the world's leading technology to make our vision a reality.

Performance.
Reliability.
Capacity.
Efficiency.

Pliops Extreme Data Processor (XDP) exponentially increases these four key values in one device by radically simplifying how data is processed and SSD storage is managed. XDP seamlessly manages data flow from application to storage, shaping the data for optimal placement to the lowest-cost SSDs, enabling very high performance with fully offloaded data protection and inline transparent compression.

XDP's ultra-fast hardware-based storage engine leverages breakthrough data structures and algorithms to deliver the performance equivalent of hundreds of intel® Xeon® Gold cores of common data processing and storage management functions. This eliminates bottlenecks, reduces latency, and greatly increases workload scaling of your existing infrastructure footprint. Pliops XDP provides value across a broad range of applications with a single solution that is easy to deploy across your entire datacenter.
